Narrative Explanation, if needed

Random Inspection performed today due to an e-mail received by our office from a client of this boarding kennel. That e-mail stated concerns about a dog that was injured while in the care of the boarding kennel. A photo of the injury was attached to the e-mail as well. The injury is described as an unsubstantially deep scratch, roughly 1-1/2 inches in length, to the forehead of the dog (as seen in the photo). According to records kept by the boarding kennel the dog was admitted into their care on 12/21/12 & checked out by the owner on 1/2/13. Also noted in the records was that the dog received "a large scrape on head from Suk"; another K-9 that was playing with this dog. The dog's records show that permission is given by the owner for his dog to play in a commingling setting & as well as initials obtained from the owner of the dog for a release of liability for injury while in the care of the boarding kennel & it's staff.

When I questioned the owner & the present staff of the boarding kennel why the dog was not seen by a veterinarian after the injury they stated "the scrape was not deep, in didn't even bleed. We felt it wasn't a serious enough wound to seek medical attention". While on the premises I reviewed the facilities general policy and procedures of "Day Campers" (Doggie Day care) & obtained a general copy for my records. Also, I received copies of this particular dog's boarding agreement and Daycamp agreement for future reference if needed.

Facility Inspection for this visit:

Last time i was on the premises was 11/29/12 for the facilities annual inspection. That inspection noted that wooden clipboards needed to be replaced with plastic clipboards or covered with a product impervious to moisture. No other inadequacies noted during that visit. Today inspection: noted that some of the clipboards have already been replaced with more plastic clipboards on the premises and ready to replace the wooden ones. Owner advises that project should be completed in the upcoming days. No other inadequacies noted, all records were in order & to AWA standards, facility was clean and odor free and ambient temperature in all facilities was within range .
