Narrative Explanation

Annual inspection today with current Shelter Director Katie Benson, Assistant Shelter Director Sistine Burgess and new Shelter Director Liz Miesnik are all in attendance.

Upon entrance today at the shelter I am extremely surprised to see that they have completely renovated. From the front office to the kennel area inside and out. The front lobby now has a door that leads to the cat palace. It then extends into a functional office space with access to a new enclosed meet and greet area. Flowing nicely into the canine housing that has been fitted with new kennels, cross contamination barriers, guillotine doors and paint. The outside section of these kennels have been re constructed as well. All of these pens reflect compliance and beyond. I am very impressed with how it all comes together. The careful thought and planning that went into this process is evident.

The animals on the premise appear as always to be happy, healthy and well adjusted.

Paperwork remains the same and thus in AWA compliance.

I have been informed that the new Shelter Director will be in training for the next few weeks before she takes over the position.

I have no new concerns at this time. I will return as needed and on a random basis. I will be available to the staff should they have any questions during their transition.
