Agronomist hired for NE N.C. counties

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services has hired Adam Lassiter as regional agronomist for Beaufort, Dare, Hyde, Martin, Pamlico, Tyrrell and Washington counties. Lassiter is based at the Vernon James Center in Plymouth.

Regional agronomists are part of the Field Services Section of the department's Agronomic Services Division. They provide advice on crop fertilization, nutrient management, lime needs, soil testing, plant tissue analysis, use of animal wastes and composts, nematode analysis, and testing of source water and nutrient solutions.

Lassiter, a native of Perquimans County, earned his bachelor's and master's degrees in agricultural education from North Carolina A&T State University. He has worked as a county agent for Cooperative Extension and as a private agricultural consultant.

To arrange a consultation, contact Lassiter by email at adam.lassiter@ncagr.gov or by office phone, 252-793-4118, ext. 122.

Farms finding success with agritourism

Like many families across North Carolina, David Ferrell's family has deep roots in tobacco. For more than a century, the Ferrells grew tobacco and other crops on their farm in western Wake County.

Green Acres Farm stopped growing tobacco about 10 years ago, but the Ferrells have kept the family farm going through agritourism. The farm is one of about 600 N.C. farms involved in agritourism.

"Tobacco put me through school. My family's in the position we're in because of tobacco," Ferrell said. "There isn't a cash crop that will do that anymore and agritourism is a good income."

Agritourism can include everything from pick-your-own farms and pumpkin patches to wedding venues and wineries. The Ferrells began selling Christmas trees on their farm in 1999. In 2009, they added a corn maze, which has grown into an even larger business.

"We were looking for extra income and trying to draw people here for the Christmas trees," Ferrell said. "Now the corn maze has taken over."

Plans for the corn maze begin each July, and the season runs from mid-September through October. During that period, Green Acres hosts school groups, church groups, corporate family days and birthday parties looking for a little fall fun.

Hill Ridge Farms in Youngsville has also found success in agritourism. For 44 years, the farm has offered some sort of agritourism to visitors.

Owner John Hill started the venture as a pick-your-own vegetable farm on his family's farm and has since expanded it to include activities throughout the year, including a corn playhouse, life-sized fort and teepee, train rides, a pumpkin patch and hayrides.

(See Agritourism, pg. 3)

The Giant Mountain Slide at Hill Ridge Farms in Youngsville is one of the farm's popular attractions. Hill Ridge has offered some type of agritourism activity at the farm for 44 years. Hill Ridge also offers such seasonal activities as a Festival of Lights at Christmastime.

Military looking to partner with Eastern N.C. landowners

Private landowners in 18 Eastern North Carolina counties may be eligible for a program to protect rural lands from development while preserving existing military flight paths.

The Market Based Conservation Initiative is a partnership between the U.S. Marine Corps and the N.C. Foundation for Soil and Water Conservation, whose purpose is to support local soil and water conservation districts. The foundation will enter into contracts with private landowners who have tax parcels under a military flight path.

For the length of their contracts, landowners will receive annual payments to maintain their property classification as agriculture, forestry, horticulture or wildlife use. Program participation will limit tall structures and upward lighting. Contract lengths can be 10, 20 or 30 years, and funding is provided by the Department of Defense.

"Rapid growth in North Carolina has led to increased development, which challenges our family farms and threatens the state's top two industries – agribusiness, and military training and operations," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. "This program will assist landowners in maintaining their working lands and allow the military to maintain flight paths for training."

The first project is open to landowners under an identified military training route crossing over portions of the

Commissioner Troxler

At the beginning of the year, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration released long-awaited proposed federal food safety rules, which emphasize measures that farmers and produce packers should take to prevent the contamination of fresh fruits and vegetables. The rules also included preventive measure for the manufacturing of food products.

by Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler

We all recognize the need to produce safe foods. We have seen too many times where through no fault of their own, many farmers across the country have suffered financial losses when a commodity they happen to produce is linked to a food recall, even when their product is not involved in the recall at all.

For example, if there is a spinach recall on the West Coast, the public becomes wary of all spinach – even spinach grown here.

The Food Safety Modernization Act and these rules represent a significant step forward in protecting the American public by focusing on prevention. Within agriculture and the farming community, we want to provide a safe product and work collaboratively with the FDA to address any food safety issues to better protect public health.

The announcement of these proposed rules now gives us an opportunity to weigh in and offer input, and growers, packers and consumers will have a chance to talk directly with FDA officials on Feb. 20 from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Scott Building at the State Fairgrounds in Raleigh.

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services will host this meeting, and we expect Michael Taylor, FDA's deputy commissioner of foods, and Dr. James Gorny, FDA's senior advisor for produce safety, to attend and present information on these proposals. There will also be a question and answer time for attendees.

I strongly encourage everyone involved in the fresh produce business to attend this meeting. It is important that farmers, packers and food manufacturers scrutinize the rules and take time to offer feedback. Input from the industry and the public will be essential to ensuring that FDA gets these rules right.

You can find information about the rules online at <http://www.fda.gov/fsma>. Partnership and education will be critical as FDA moves forward with food safety rules.

We look forward to working with the FDA on a new approach to edu-following counties: Beaufort, Bertie, Carteret, Craven, Duplin, Edgecombe, Franklin, Halifax, Harnett, Johnston, Jones, Lenoir, Martin, Nash, Onslow, Pamlico, Sampson and Wake. Eligible landowners can offer bids per acre to keep their land in agricultural and rural land uses, which are compatible with military training needs. To be eligible, the land will need to be enrolled in the county present-use value program, which requires an active land management plan.

For landowners in Duplin, Harnett, Johnston, Lenoir and Sampson counties, the local soil and water conservation districts are scheduling workshops to provide more detailed program information. Workshops for landowners in the other participating counties have not been planned yet, but will be set up later this year.

NCDA&CS sets public meetings on proposed gypsy moth treatments

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services is seeking input from residents in Caswell, Granville and Rockingham counties concerning treatment options for the non-native, highly destructive gypsy moth.

Field monitoring activities conducted by the department in 2012 determined that reproducing populations of the gypsy moth exist in these counties and represent a threat to hardwood trees. Residents in or near the proposed treatment areas have been sent notices by mail.

The following meetings are scheduled:

- Tuesday, Feb. 5, at 7 p.m. at the Eden Public Library, Eden. This meeting is for the proposed treatment area northwest of the city of Eden in Rockingham County.
- Thursday, Feb. 7, at 7 p.m. at the Providence Fire Department, Providence. This meeting is for the proposed treatment areas in or near Ruffin in Rockingham County, and an area between Yanceyville in Caswell County and the Virginia border.
- Tuesday, Feb. 12, at 7 p.m. at the Oxford Tobacco Research Station, Oxford. This meeting is for the proposed treatment area about 7 miles west of Stovall in Granville County.

The department has addressed spot introductions of the gypsy moth in several areas across North Carolina since the 1970s.

The department is working with nine other states through the Gypsy Moth Slow the Spread Foundation Inc. and with other state and federal agencies to reduce the expansion of the gypsy moth into uninfested areas of the state.

In early spring, gypsy moth caterpillars feed on the leaves of hundreds of plant species, predominantly hardwood trees. In heavily infested areas, trees may be completely stripped of foliage, leaving entire forests more susceptible to attacks from other pests.

Gypsy moths can also be a nuisance to the general public. Caterpillars may migrate in search of food, sometimes entering houses and ending up in swimming pools. Some people can have allergic reactions to the caterpillars' tiny hairs.

Options for dealing with gypsy moth infestations include aerial spraying of biological pesticides and aerial applications of gypsy moth mating disruptants. Trapping grids are used to evaluate the effectiveness of treatments.

Bucolic briefs

The N.C. Small Grain Growers Association opened an office at 3822 Bland Road in Raleigh to better serve the needs of farmers across the state. The association formed in 1986 to help its members with research, education, promotion and marketing for the small grain industry. The association is producing short, educational videos that can help farmers with crop production challenges. The videos can be viewed online at ncsmallgrains.com. In addition, for the 2013 crop season, the association has funded more than $600,000 for research and education on small grain crops.

Beekeepers with bees for rent and growers interested in bee pollination services can post their information on the BeeLinked website at www.ncagr.com/beeinked. The site is hosted by the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services and the N.C. State University Apiculture Program. Anyone interested in listing their information can do so by filling out an online Submit Your Ad form on the BeeLinked page or by contacting NCDA&CS at 919-233-8214 or by email at NCHoneybee@ncagr.gov, or call NCSU at 919-515-1660. The NCDA&CS Plant Industry Division regulates the movement of agricultural or related items capable of spreading harmful insects, diseases and other pests. Beekeepers participating in this program will be required to comply with all honey and bee industry regulations.

The Granville County Extension Service is hosting "Building a Specialty Crop Farm Enterprise," a six-class series that aims to help people interested in transitioning into farming. Each three-hour class will focus on a business-planning topic. Four of the six sessions will end with discussions with a grower who is currently engaged in a small farm enterprise. Sessions are held on Tuesdays for the following dates: Feb. 5, Feb. 19, March 5, March 19, April 9 and April 23. The business-planning seminars will give farmers the tools to create a viable business plan for a small-scale specialty crop enterprise. Cost is $100 and includes lunch at each session, a business plan manual and an informational notebook. For more information or registration form, go to <http://granville.ces.ncsu.edu/spotlight/building-a-specialty-crop-farm-enterprise-school> or contact Carl Cantaluppi at 919-603-1350 or carl_cantaluppi@ncsu.edu.

A two-year program aimed at helping farmers manage deer and reduce crop loss from damage caused by deer is seeking farmers interested in enrolling farmland in 2013. For two weeks in the fall deer hunting season, the N.C. Wildlife Federation will lease land from row crop farmers and recruit sportsmen. Hunters will harvest deer according to a property-specific plan with excess venison donated to charity. N.C. Hunters for the Hungry will process donated deer. If you want to learn more about how to enroll your land, there will be two town hall meetings held in Eastern North Carolina. The following are dates, locations and contacts: Feb. 12 at 6 p.m. at the Onslow County Multipurpose Complex in Jacksonville for farmers in Onslow, Jones and Pender counties. Contact Nita Walton, 910-455-5873; and Feb. 19 at 6:30 p.m. at the East Carolina Agriculture Center in Rocky Mount for farmers in Edgecombe, Wilson and Pitt counties. Contact Art Bradley, 252-641-7815.

The 4th Annual Organic Commodities and Livestock Conference will be held Feb. 14 and 15. On-farm workshops will be held Feb. 14 at Lindale Dairy in Snow Camp and at Hocutt Farms, an organic vegetable farm, in Sims. The conference will be held in the Brown Auditorium & Industry Center at Nash Community College in Rocky Mount. The conference features workshops on organic grain varieties, organic tobacco production, holistic vet care, soil fertility and organic disease management. The conference is $35 and the deadline to register is Feb. 4. For more, go to www.carolinafarmstewards.org/oclc/ or call Amy Armbruster at 919-542-2402.

The N.C. Pecan Growers Association its hosting its annual educational meeting and orchard visit Feb. 16 at LuMil Vineyard in Dublin. The meeting will cover such topics as marketing, crop management and production practices. Meeting cost is $20 and includes lunch. For more, contact Laurie Wood, executive secretary, NCPGA, 919-385-4570 or email at npecan@gmail.com.

The 7th Annual Agritourism Networking Association Winter Conference will be held Feb. 21 and 22 at the Courtyard Marriott at Carolina Beach. Participants can visit seven farms in the coastal area from 2:30-4:30 p.m. on Feb. 21. In addition to the winter conference, four mini-conferences will be held regionally. Following are dates and locations: Jan. 17 at the Sen. Bob Martin Eastern Ag Center in Williamston; Feb. 28 at Oak Haven Farm in Rockingham County; March 14 at The Fork Farm in Stanly County; and March 28 at St. Paul Mountain Vineyard in Henderson County. For more information on any of the events, contact Martha Glass, agritourism manager, 919-707-3120.

The Equestrian Exchange Tack Consignment Sale will be held Feb. 21-25 at the Cabarrus Arena Event Center in Concord. Buy or consign anything related to equestrian sport and tack for all riding disciplines. New bar code tagging allows consignors to view sales remotely. Consignors drop off items Feb. 20 and pick up items Feb. 26 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. both days. A premier shopping night open to the public will be held Feb. 21 from 5-9 p.m. Cost is $7. Free shopping Feb. 22 and 23 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Feb. 24 from noon to 6 p.m. Consignors earn 75 percent and can donate unsold items to nonprofit equestrian organizations. For more information or to purchase a ticket to the premier night sale, go to www.EquestrianExchange.com or contact Lynn Beeson at 336-362-6248 or Tanya Wright at 540-977-1950.

The Northern Piedmont Specialty Crops School will be held March 1 at the Person County Extension Center in Roxboro. The school will feature presentations by Brianne McAlister of High Rock Farm in Gibsonville, which produces pecans, hybrid chestnuts, blackberries and raspberries for a number of value-added products; Greg Carter of Deep Woods Mushrooms in Horse Shoe, which produces and sells Shitake mushrooms; and Carl Cantaluppi, with Granville County Cooperative Extension. Cantaluppi will provide an update on asparagus and rhubarb research. The cost of the one-day school is $25 for the first person of a family or a business and $15 for each additional family member or business associate. Cost includes lunch and preregistration is required to guarantee an seat and lunch. For a pre-registration form and school program, go to www.ces.ncsu.edu/wp-content/uploads/2012/12/NPSpecCropSchool2013.pdf or contact Cantaluppi at 919-603-1350 or carl_cantaluppi@ncasu.edu.

Piedmont Saddle Club in Colfax will open its lighted arena every Friday night from 5-9 p.m. for horse riders. The cost is $10 per horse and equine owners must provide proof of Coggins testing and sign a waiver. The events are open to the public. Contact info@piedmontsaddleclub.org for more information.

The North Carolina chapter of Re-Run, a nonprofit organization that places ex-racehorses into adoptive homes, now has thoroughbred racehorses available for adoption. Thoroughbreds are versatile and do well in any number of disciplines including shows, events, fox hunting or pleasure riding, according to Elizabeth Macdonald with Re-Run. Agritourism

This year, Hill extended his agritourism season further with the Festival of Lights. The Christmas attraction included a display with more than 100,000 lights and nightly visits from Santa.

"We want to keep this thing forever," Hill said. "And this is one reason we're trying to add things to it to sustain additional families."

Both Ferrell and Hill agree that part of the challenge with making a successful agritourism farm is marketing.

"A lot of it is marketing," Ferrell said. His wife, Beth, has a degree in business and handles the marketing for Green Acres. He said Green Acres gets a lot of traffic from curious drivers passing by, but said they also supplement with ads on radio and television.

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services can assist farmers with starting and marketing their agritourism farm through the Agritourism Office. Martha Glass has been managing the office since 2003.

"The USDA recently said that agritourism is one of the most popular things rising and growing in the agriculture industry," Glass said. "We're here to help our farmers figure out how they can select agritourism options appropriate for their farms."

One of the ways the office helps is through the Agritourism Networking Association, which has grown to 250 member farms.

Throughout the year, the group hosts workshops, networking events and conferences for farmers to share ideas and learn how to improve their operations.

Covered wagons are popular modes of transportation at many agritourism farms. Above, visitors to Green Acres Farm in Cary load up to tour the farm.

Hill is a member of ANA and has participated in national conferences on agritourism.

"The thing Martha's doing is a good thing," Hill said. "It's taking people who've dealt with growing things and selling wholesale and don't have skills to deal with the public, and they end up learning how to do it."

The ANA will host its annual conference Feb. 21-22 in Carolina Beach. The conference includes workshops, networking opportunities and an open house at seven coastal agritourism farms. Early-bird registration ends Feb. 5.

Farmers interested in learning more about starting an agritourism farm, should attend an upcoming mini-conference. Three mini-conferences will be held this spring: Oak Haven Farm in Rockingham County, Feb. 28; The Fork Farm in Stanly County, March 14; and St. Paul Mountain Vineyard in Henderson County, March 28.

For more on the conferences, contact Martha Glass in the Agritourism Office at 919-707-3120. Extended interviews with David Ferrell and John Hill can be found on the In the Field blog at <http://info.ncagr.com/blog/?p=18823>.

Changing seasonal attractions such as the pick-your-own pumpkin patch at Hill Ridge Farms keep families coming back again and again.

Agritourism operators say sometimes the simplest things draw the most attention, such as these bales of stacked hay at Green Acres Farm.
