Two Voluntary Ag District workshops to be held in March

The N.C. Agricultural Development and Farmland Preservation Trust Fund will assist in hosting workshops for local governments interested in protecting their communities’ agricultural lands. The Voluntary Agricultural District workshops are for agricultural advisory board members, county representatives, program staff, farmers and anyone else interested in, developing and administering voluntary and enhanced voluntary agricultural plans. Workshops will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Following are dates and locations:

- March 5 - Catawba Agricultural Center, Newton
- March 22 - Cowee School, Franklin

Topics covered at the workshops include state and federal program incentives for participation, farmland protection plan development, working with the N.C. Department of Transportation and updates on hot-button issues, such as voluntary agricultural district programs, the farm bill, estate tax changes and more.

There are 84 counties with active VADS. For more information, or to register for the free workshops, go to www.ncagdp.org/vadsprogram.htm.

Boll weevil assessment stays at 70 cents per acre

The board of the Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation of North Carolina voted to keep the boll weevil assessment rate at 70 cents per acre of cotton for 2013. That amount is the same as it was for 2012.

The fee supports the foundation’s efforts to monitor cotton acreage for any re-introduction of the boll weevil, which was eradicating in the state in 1986, and to respond promptly with eradication treatments if necessary.

“Eradicating this pest was the first step, continuing to keep it out of the state remains our constant goal,” said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler.

“The trapping and monitoring activity supported by this assessment helps ensure any spot re-introductions of boll weevils are quickly dealt with.”

Foundation contractors will install and monitor traps from late summer until after harvest and frost. Because the focus of North Carolina’s program has shifted from eradication to monitoring, farmers should anticipate the number of traps in fields will decrease. As such, each trap will be critical, and farmers are encouraged to contact the foundation if traps are damaged or knocked down.

In 2012, just over 10,000 traps were placed and maintained in North Carolina, with each trap monitoring an average of nearly 47 acres. Farmers in 54 counties grew 429,060 certified acres of cotton last year. The top three cotton-growing counties were Halifax, Northampton and Edgecombe.

To allow for trapping and monitoring, cotton growers are required to certify cotton acreage information with their local U.S. Farm Service Agency office by June 30. To learn more about the boll weevil monitoring program, go to www.ncagr.gov/plantindustry/plantentomology/BW.htm.

WNC grants available as part of TVA settlement

Application deadline is March 22

County governments and nonprofit conservation groups pursuing agricultural development and farmland preservation projects in 17 western N.C. counties can apply for funding assistance from the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services’ Agricultural Development and Farmland Preservation-Tennessee Valley Authority grant program. The N.C. General Assembly appropriated a portion of the state’s TVA Settlement Fund to support this grant program, and legislators restricted use of the money to projects benefitting one or more of the following counties: Avery, Buncombe, Burke, Cherokee, Clay, Graham, Haywood, Henderson, Jackson, Macon, Madison, McDowell, Mitchell, Swain, Transylvania, Watauga and Yancey.

The ADP-TVA grants are designated to support projects that encourage the preservation of qualifying agricultural, horticultural and forest lands to foster the growth of family farms,” said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler.

“We’re looking forward to helping communities across these 17 western counties preserve working farms and farmland. Grants can be awarded to secure agricultural conservation easements on lands used for agricultural production; to support public and private enterprise programs that promote profitable and sustainable agricultural, horticultural and forestland activities; and for the development of agricultural plans.

Applications and guidelines for funding are available online at www.ncagr.gov/environmentalprograms/ or by calling 919-707-3071. Applications are due by 5 p.m. on March 22.

Butterball named N.C. Exporter of the Year

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services named Butterball, Inc. as the 2013 N.C. Exporter of the Year.

“From 2009 to 2011, we saw turkey exports nearly double in North Carolina,” said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler.

Butterball makes up a significant percentage of those exports and is deserving of this honor.”

Company representatives were recognized at a presentation during the annual Ag Development Forum at the State Fairgrounds Jan. 31. The Exporter of the Year award acknowledges agribusinesses that have excelled in exporting N.C. agricultural products around the world. Butterball exports more than 100 million pounds of turkey products to more than 50 countries annually. In addition, the company develops new products that cater to international markets and customs. As a result, Butterball is able to export 15 percent of its annual volume through products the U.S. market cannot absorb.

Joel Coleman, general manager of Butterball, said the company has enjoyed significant growth in China, Canada, Mexico and other countries, helping the company grow to supply all 50 states and 36 countries around the world.

by Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler

I wanted to update readers on some efforts the department has been involved in to improve our ports and increase resources at the ports that I believe will be a great benefit to our state and our farmers.

In early February, fellows of the Council of State and I, approved a lease that gives the go-ahead for a public-private partnership seeking to build a state-of-the-art cold storage facility at the Port of Wilmington.

The partnership between the Port, the Ports Authority and USA Investco will include an initial investment of $13 million to build a 75,000-square-foot facility for near- vessel storage of fruits, vegetables, meat and other agricultural products. Long range, this facility could expand to 300,000 square feet.

Some of you may be wondering why I have such an interest in the ports, but you don’t have to look any further than ag exports.

North Carolina exports more than $3 billion worth of agricultural products each year, and I hope we will see that number grow in the future through the efforts of future trade missions, our trade office and these improved port facilities.

Already this year, two businesses have scored their first sales to China, N.C.’s DeState Winery of Mount Airy and Carolina Native Nursery of Burnsville shipped wine and nursery products, respectively. Hopefully, they represent many more companies to follow.

When we opened the trade office in China in 2011, one of the things I kept hearing from farmers and commodity groups alike was how much we needed to improve our ports so these businesses did not have to transport goods to other states for overseas shipments, eating into their profits.

At that time, we started looking more closely at ports in the state and came to the conclusion that investment in them, making the case that we were losing opportunities at our own ports by not making some improvements. We were joined in these efforts by the Department of Commerce and the Department of Transportation.

Beepers: Beepers for bees and growers interested in bee pollination services can post their information on the BeeLinked website at www.ncaep.com/bleeped. The site is hosted by the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services and the N.C. State University Agriculture Program. Anyone interested in listing their information can do so by filling out an online Submit Your Ad form on the BeeLinked page or by contacting NCDA&CS at 919-233-8214, by email at NCINFObees@ncagr.gov or call NCUS at 919-515-1660. The NCDA&C Plant Industry Division regulates the movement of agricultural or related items capable of spreading harmful insects, diseases and other pests. Beepers participating in this program will be required to comply with all honey and bee industry regulations.

Two regional agritourism mini-conferences will be held in March. Following are the dates and locations: March 14 at The Fork Farm in Steady and March 28 at Paul Mountain Schoolhouse in Henderson County. For more information on either event, contact Martha Glass, agritourism coordinator, 919-797-3120.

The Northern Piedmont Specialty Crops School will be held March 1 at the Person County Extension Center in Roxboro. The school will feature presentations by Brianne McAllister of High Rock Farm in Gibsonville, which produces pecans, black Mission figs, blackberries and raspberries for a number of value-added products; Greg Carter of Deep Woods Mushrooms in Horse Shoe, which produces and sells shiitake mushrooms; and Carl Cantaluppi, with Granville County Cooperative Extension. Cantaluppi will provide an update on asparagus and rhubarb research. The cost of the one-day school is $25 for the first person of a family or a business and $15 for each additional family member or business associate. Cost includes lunch and pre-registration is required to guarantee a seat and lunch. For pre-registration form and school program, go to www.ces.ncsu.edu/wp-content/uploads/2012/11/NPSpecCropsSchool2013.pdf or contact Cantaluppi at 919-603-1590 or carl.cantaluppi@ncsu.edu.

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services will host two workshops focusing on growing local farmers markets in North Carolina. The one-day classes, geared toward market managers and their board members, are scheduled for Smithfield and Fletcher. Following are the dates: March 8 at the Johnston County Cooperative Extension office in Smithfield and March 13 at the Virginia Boone Building at the WNC Agricultural Center in Fletcher. The workshops will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Each cost $20, and covers materials and lunch. Pre-registration is required.

The Piedmont Saddle Club in Colfax will open its lighted arena every Friday night from 5:30 p.m. for horse riders. The cost is $10 per horse and equine owners must provide proof of Coggins testing and sign a waiver. The events are open to the public and contact info@piedmontsaddleclub.org for more information.

The North Carolina chapter of Re-Run, a nonprofit organization that places ex-racehorses into adoptive homes, now has thoroughbred racehorses available for adoption. Thoroughbreds are versatile and do well in any number of disciplines including shows, events, fox hunting or pleasure riding, according to Elizabeth Macaulay with Re-Run.
