Cogongrass workshop June 2 in Scotland County

Following the discovery of the federally listed noxious weed cogongrass in northern Scotland County, plant pest regulators will hold a workshop June 2 to help residents identify the grass to be able to report it and help prevent its spread.

The free, hands-on workshop will be held from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and will provide participants the opportunity to see the plant during its flowering stage, help them learn how to identify it and offer discussions with weed control specialists about various control options. The workshop will be held at the cogongrass site in Marston.

Isolated stands of the weed have been eradicated in Martin, Pender and Stanly counties. Cogongrass is considered one of the top 10 weeds in the world, and spreads through seed and rhizomes.

Anyone interested in attending the workshop is asked to register through EventBrite by searching the site for Cogongrass Workshop or contact Lassiter at 919-707-3749 or email at bridget.lassiter@ncagr.gov.

Got to Be NC Festival runs May 20-22

Dinosaurs, pirates and bulldozers will be among the additions to the perennial lineup of North Carolina food, animal and agricultural exhibits at the 2016 Got to Be NC Festival. The event will take place May 20-22 at the N.C. State Fairgrounds.

"The Got to Be NC Festival showcases the finest of North Carolina's $76 billion agriculture industry while offering a variety of family-friendly attractions for visitors to enjoy," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. "This year's lineup is one of our most diverse yet, so come out and celebrate with us."

The new attractions include an interactive dinosaur exhibit curated by a former N.C. Zoo employee and paleontology enthusiast, swashbuckling pirate reenactors and educators, and rumbling and roaring antique construction equipment.

Dakota & Friends

Dakota & Friends is an interactive and informational dinosaur exhibit featuring Dakota, a moving, life-size Deinonychus. In the exhibit, visitors will have a chance to interact with Dakota and pet a baby Tyrannosaurus Rex. The attraction also includes other dinosaurs, exploding volcanoes, natural dinosaur habitats and more.

Shadow Players

Shadow Players is a stage combat group that portrays and re-creates scenes from the golden age of piracy. Shadow Players features Steve Whetzel, the pirate mascot of East Carolina University. Through rousing sword fights and comedy, the troupe educates the crowd on real-life pirates such as Blackbeard and others who sailed the seas off North Carolina's coast. (See Festival, pg. 2)

NCDA & CS offers new online mapping services

■ Voluntary program aims to help prevent crop damage and bee deaths

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services has joined 13 other states in partnering with FieldWatch, an online mapping service to help prevent crop damage and bee deaths due to accidental/unintended pesticide drift. Producers of horticultural and organic crops can map their field location using the DriftWatch program. As a companion program, BeeCheck will allow hive owners to map the locations of beehives. Pesticide applicators can access both databases before treating a field to identify sensitive sites that are close to the spray areas.

"This program is voluntary, non-regulatory and free to use," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. "Other states, especially in the Midwest, have had great success in getting pesticide users, farmers and beekeepers to use the site to reduce the effects of accidental drift. We hope to see similar results here."

Growers, beekeepers and pesticide users can access DriftWatch and BeeCheck at www.ncagr.gov/pollinators. The website offers detailed instructions on how to sign up and use the mapping tools. Producers of high-value specialty crops, such as tomatoes, tobacco, fruit trees, grapes and vegetables can map their sites and provide contact information about their operation on DriftWatch. Using BeeCheck, beekeepers map their hives using pins and half-acre circles and can choose which details of hive information are displayed on the map.

"This program should help specialty crop producers, beekeepers and pesticide users be good neighbors and work together to protect our pollinators and avoid drift on sensitive crops," Troxler said. "We hope to spend the next several months meeting with grower groups and working with Cooperative Extension and the N.C. Farm Bureau to explain how DriftWatch works and how to use the online

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently released its 2016 Prospective Plantings Report, and planting intentions point to some interesting changes for some crops this year.

Farmers report that they intend to plant more corn, sweet potatoes, hay and peanuts in 2016. One of the most interesting in that group is sweet potatoes.

If planting intentions hold true, we could be looking at the highest acreage ever recorded in our state at 105,000 acres. That is up 21 percent from 2015. The record is 101,000 acres in 1932.

Sweet potato producers are finding new markets for their commodities, including through value-added production, so this jump is not too surprising. We are now seeing sweet potatoes in pet food, as well as the raw product being turned into chips, fries and purees, making it easier for consumers and food service workers. We even have a company in the state making vodka from sweet potatoes. All of these uses mean there is a market for less-than-perfect potatoes including smaller, misshapen ones, which is good for the bottom line.

We often see up and down numbers for corn, particularly as prices fluctuate. Farmers have indicated they plan to plant 930,000 acres this year. That is 18 percent higher than 2015, reversing a downward trend of the past two growing seasons.

Another crop that Dr. Nick Piggott, an N.C. State University ag economist, recently pointed out as being on the rise is grain sorghum, which is projected to be up by 25 percent. If planting intentions hold true, acreage would jump from around 40,000 acres to 50,000. Piggott attributes that increase to grain sorghum potentially being more profitable than soybeans or cotton.

Hay acreage is expected to be up 7 percent and peanut acreage is expected to be 6 percent higher.

When we have increases in some crops, that typically means another crop loses ground. Cotton, tobacco and soybean plantings are all expected to be down. We already saw a drop in winter wheat production, down 25 percent at 490,000 acres planted.

Cotton looks to be the next biggest dropper, also down 25 percent at 290,000 projected acres.

Farmers are looking at smaller flue-cured and burley tobacco acreage this year, with flue-cured dropping by 6 percent to 160,000 acres and burley being forecast down by 5 percent.

Intentions also point to smaller soybean acreage, down 7 percent from 2015.

Of course, planting intentions and actual plantings can be two completely different things. We'll know more in June when the USDA's acreage report comes out.

Seven stores pay fines for price-scanning errors

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services' Standards Division has collected fines from stores in Duplin, Durham, Johnston, Mecklenburg, Wake and Wilson counties because of excessive price-scanner errors.

The Standards Division conducts periodic, unannounced inspections of a business' price-scanner system to check for accuracy between the prices advertised and the prices that ring up at the register. If a store has more than a 2 percent error rate on overcharges, inspectors discuss the findings with the store manager and conduct a more intensive follow-up inspection at a later date. Undercharges are also reported, but do not count against a store.

Penalties are assessed if a store fails the follow-up inspection. In addition to the penalties paid, the store will be subject to re-inspection every 60 days from the last inspection until it meets the 2-percent-or-less rate. Additional penalties may be assessed if the store fails a re-inspection.

“Stores have a responsibility to make sure that the price listed on the shelf matches the price charged at the register,” said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. “We want shoppers to be confident that at grocery stores and retail outlets they are paying the shelf price they expect and not more. Consumers can contact our Standards Division at 919-707-3225 to register a complaint.”

Following are stores that paid civil penalties in the first quarter of 2016:

Wal-Mart #1352 at 5625 S. NC Highway 41, Wallace, paid $525 in civil penalties. An initial inspection in December found an error rate of 3 percent, based on three overcharges in a 100-item lot. A second inspection in January found an error rate of 2.33 percent, based on seven overcharges in a 300-item lot. The store will be re-inspected.

Staples #708 at 3600 N. Duke St., Durham, paid $1,215 in civil penalties. An initial inspection in November found an error rate of 10 percent, based on five overcharges in a 50-item lot. A second inspection in December found an error rate of 4.33 percent, based on 13 overcharges in a 300-item lot. The store will be re-inspected.

Wal-Mart #1614 at 1525 Glenn School Road, Durham, paid $1,545 in civil penalties. An initial inspection in October found an error rate of 7 percent, based on seven overcharges in a 100-item lot. A second inspection in November found an error rate of 4.67 percent, based on 14 overcharges in a 300-item lot. The store passed re-inspection in January with a 1.33 percent error rate.

Carquest #1181 at 926 N. Brightleaf Blvd., Smithfield, paid $900 in civil penalties. An initial inspection in October found an error rate of 12 percent, based on six overcharges on a 50-item lot. A second inspection in November found an error rate of 7.67 percent, based on 23 overcharges in a 300-item lot. The store passed a re-inspection in January with a .20 percent error rate.

Super Target #2080 at 9841 North Lake Center, Charlotte, paid $1,545 in civil penalties. An initial inspection in December found an error rate of 4 percent, based on four overcharges in a 100-item lot. A second inspection in January (See Scanner fines, pg. 3)

Bucolic briefs

Officials recently held a ribbon-cutting and dedication ceremony for a new $1.5 million multi-purpose facility at Millstone 4-H Camp in Ellerbe. N.C. State University administrators and 4-H alumni joined donors and community leaders to officially open the State Employees' Credit Union (SECU) 4-H Learning Center, The Cole Foundation Auditorium and the N.C. 4-H Hall of Leadership.

As part of the N.C. 4-H History and Learning Center Complex at Millstone, the new facilities will add about 3,500 square feet of conditioned space for retreats, conferences, workshops and educational programs. The space will include an auditorium seating more than 150 people, a 4-H archive and conference room, and a hall of leadership with professional exhibits that illustrate 4-H's history while honoring former state 4-H program leaders.

Dr. Mike Yoder, state 4-H program leader at NC State, expects the additions to have an immediate and lasting impact. “We believe the key to positive youth development is learning by doing,” Yoder said. “This building will enhance the resources and opportunities we have to educate campers through new and exciting hands-on experiences.” In addition to SECU and The Cole Foundation, which contributed $750,000 and $250,000 respectively, private donors added another $500,000 to help fund the building. Hobbs Architects of Pittsboro designed the facilities.

Millstone 4-H Camp offers programs ranging from boating and horsemanship to shooting sports and traditional 4-H camp starting June 12 through Aug. 2. One of three N.C. 4-H camping centers operated by NC State, the 320-acre Millstone 4-H Camp was constructed in 1938 and opened the following year. The other camps are Betsy-Jeff Penn 4-H Educational Center in Reidsville and the Eastern 4-H Center in Columbia.

As a way to help farmers and agricultural workers stay safe at work, the N.C. Department of Labor offers safety videos on a variety of topics through its YouTube channel. Video topics include: preventing green tobacco sickness, hazard communication, tobacco harvester safety, heat stress, migrant housing requirements, forklift safety, and information about the NCDOL's Gold Star Growers program. The videos are in English and Spanish to increase understanding of safety hazards and preventing accidents. To learn more about the NCDOL and the Agricultural Safety and Health Bureau, go to www.nclabor.com or call 1-800-NC-LABOR (800-625-2267). NCDOL is also on Facebook and Twitter (@NCDOL).

Beekeepers with bees for rent and growers interested in bee pollination services can post their information on the BeeLinked website at www.ncagr.com/beelinked. The site is hosted by the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services and the N.C. State University Apiculture Program. Anyone interested in listing their information can do so by filling out an online Submit Your Ad form on the BeeLinked page or by contacting NCDA&CS at 919-233-8214 or by email at NCHoneybee@ncagr.gov or call NCSU at 919-515-1660. The NCDA&CS Plant Industry Division regulates the movement of agricultural or related items capable of spreading harmful insects, diseases, and other pests. Beekeepers participating in this program will be required to comply with all honey and bee industry regulations.

The N.C. Ag Finance Authority provides credit to farmers in areas where financing is not available at reasonable rates and terms. The agency originates, services and finances farm loans, rural business loans, disaster loans and cotton gin loans. It also offers tax-exempt ag development bonds for agribusiness processing, ag-related manufacturing or ag waste disposal. For more about Ag Finance Authority programs or to request a loan application, call 919-790-3949 or email at RequestLoanInfo@ncagr.gov.

Bulldozers

The Antique Caterpillar Machinery Owners Club Chapter 12 will bring more than a dozen antique bulldozers and pull-behind scrapers for display and demonstrations. The club, which consists of owners from the Carolinas, Tennessee and Virginia, travels the Southeast educating the public about the historic role of Caterpillar machinery in shaping the world. Members will hold daily demonstrations in the Grandstand.

The Got to Be NC Festival runs May 20-22 at the State Fairgrounds in Raleigh. Admission to the festival is free. The event features a food, wine and beer expo, barnyard animals, a rabbit and cavy show, bluegrass competition, tractor pull, BMX bikes, racing pigs and one of the largest antique tractor displays in the Southeast. The event also includes a family-friendly carnival and fireworks. More information is available at www.gottobenfestival.com.

Students win soybean scholarships

The North Carolina Soybean Producers Association recently announced the recipients of its N.C. Soybean Research Scholarships. The association established the scholarships to support students who are seeking careers in the soybean industry.

The scholarships are awarded annually to students studying soybean production and who are involved in soybean research at N.C. State University. They are based on merit and need, with a strong preference for students from N.C. families farming soybeans.

"We are pleased to provide scholarships through the soybean checkoff to this strong group of students who have shown an interest in the soybean industry," said Jeff Peed, a soybean farmer from Aurora and president of the NCSPA. "We are certain they will make a positive impact on agriculture and soybean farming, and are glad to help support their education."

Scholarship recipients for the 2016-2017 academic year are:

-- Joshua Joyner of Johnston County, a junior majoring in plant and soil sciences in the NCSU College of Agriculture and Life Sciences.

-- James Ferebee of Currituck County, a senior majoring in agribusiness management in CALS.

-- Dustin Black of Randolph County, a senior majoring in plant biology in CALS.

-- Collin Blalock of Wilson County, a sophomore majoring in agricultural science in CALS.

-- Tyler Englebright of Granville County, a second-year student majoring in field crop technology in the NCSU Agricultural Institute.

-- Joseph Hunter of Lenoir County, a senior majoring in agricultural science in CALS.

The NCSPA is a statewide trade association representing all N.C. soybean producers, responsible for research, education and promotion programs to benefit the state's soybean farmers. It also administers national soybean checkoff programs in North Carolina.

Poultry & Supplies For Sale

Highly pathogenic avian influenza alert

In 2015, HPAI was found in the wildfowl population in the United States, representing a risk for poultry owners. At this time no cases have been found in North Carolina.

Poultry owners are encouraged, however, to watch their birds for any signs of illness and to contact a veterinarian if they find sick birds.

Growers can also contact one of four NCDA&CS regional veterinary diagnostic labs for more information. Go to www.ncagr.gov/vet/ncvdl/VetLabFacilitiesDirectory.html for contact information.

As this disease can spread by infected wildfowl, it is important to eliminate opportunities for your birds to come in contact with wild birds.

Owners are also urged to be extra mindful of biosecurity measures to prevent the spread of this disease.

This includes quarantining any new poultry additions from your existing flock for two to three weeks to observe for signs of sickness, have a dedicated pair of shoes and clothing for working with birds that stay on your property, be mindful if driving onto property with poultry as the disease can spread by vehicles. More information about HPAI can be found at www.ncagr.gov/avianflu.

Plan now for the Century Farm Family reunion Oct. 18

For 45 years, the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services' Century Farm Family program has celebrated and recognized families for 100 years of continuous ownership of their farms. This program began with the 1970 N.C. State Fair as a way to highlight the fair's theme, "Salute to Agriculture."

That year, a large push was made to get families to register their farms for the program, resulting in more than 800 farms being qualified. Today, around 1,600 farm families have earned the distinction of being a Century Family Farm, with some families now marking 200 or more years of continuous ownership.

Wakelon Farms of Zebulon, owned by the Fowler family, is one of those. The Fowlers can trace their family farm roots back to 1743, making their farm 273 years old.

The 150-head Angus beef cattle operation includes around 1,400 acres and is operated by Bob Fowler, son of Jane Fowler and the late J.R. Fowler Jr. He owns the farm with his sisters, Jill Bright and Ginny Wheeler. The family has been in the beef cattle business for 60 years; earlier generations raised tobacco, cotton, grains and feed, dairy cattle and timber.

Jane Fowler said her husband believed in investing in land, eventually acquiring five of the original six tracts of land that belonged to his grandfather.

"James Robert's philosophy was that they aren't making any more land. He could see it, take care of it and enjoy it," Jane Fowler said. "On both sides of his family were men who loved land, and he invested in that versus other things."

Bob Fowler, who is the eighth generation on the farm, inherited his dad's love for the land. He appreciates his family's long connection to the rolling hills, streams and open pastures that make up the farm in northern Wake County, and works to improve the land in a variety of ways while also making his living through farming.

"I'm not going to do anything to pollute the land I make a living on and is my heritage; or not improve it," Bob Fowler said. "Everywhere we have creeks, we have fenced off to keep the cattle out. The water has the same quality as a good quality mountain stream."

Dotting the property are patches of wildflower plots and brush he has planted specifically to foster wildlife, pollinators and birds. "I like to do a lot of wildlife plots," he said. "We have areas with prairie grass mix, along with plots with persimmon trees, coneflower plants, nut trees and Maximilian sunflowers. Those provide great habitat and food for quail, rabbits, turkeys and deer."

Bird houses are affixed to fence posts around the property to house some of these visiting inhabitants. Bits of twigs and grass peeking from entrances and corners of these simple boxes indicate the homes are welcomed and used.

During an early morning drive to check on the cattle, a flock of quail flushed up from the brush, filling the air above the cattle grazing in the lush, green pasture. It is a snapshot-worthy moment; nature awakening to a new day, stirred into motion and flight.

"It is rare to see that large of a group of quail flush from a field these days," Bob Fowler said. "That's a pretty sight to see."

Bob Fowler graduated from N.C. State University with a degree in animal science. His degree, plus his firsthand experience in the business, serves him well in managing the farm.

Jane Fowler grew up on a dairy farm in Chatham County. It is also a Century Farm. "When I got married, I had no idea that I'd be back on a farm." But she helped her husband and his parents manage the farm, from handling some of the paperwork to other day-to-day activities. Jane Fowler was also active in the Angus Association's ladies auxiliary.

On the walls of the home office are a number of plaques, framed awards and the Century Farm certificate, reminders of all that the family has worked for through the years.

Jane Fowler said some of the fondest memories she has of the farm is of family, from being next door to her husband's mother and father and near his sisters to raising their three kids on the farm.

"This farm fills me with humble heritage pride and deep thankful emotions," she said. "We all have consistently worked, and we all have been truly blessed."

Century Farm Families can be found in in all but two of the state's 100 counties – Dare and Swain.

Make sure your Century Family Farm info is up to date

This year, the Century Farm Family program will celebrate with a reunion at the State Fair Tuesday, Oct. 18, in Dorton Arena. Organizers plan to mail save-the-date cards to families in the program in May. If you are in the program and do not hear from the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services' Public Affairs office by the end of May, please download and fill out the Update Form on the CFF page at www.ncagr.gov/paffairs/century/ and return it to NCDA&CS Public Affairs at 1001 Mail Service Center, Raleigh, NC 27699-1001, by fax at 919-733-5047, or by email to danette.jernigan@ncagr.gov. If you do not have access to the Internet, please contact Danette Jernigan at 919-707-3001 for an updated form.

In addition, to having current contact information on file, we are requesting families submit copies of photos for a slideshow to be played at the reunion. If you have previously submitted photos of your farm, you do not need to re-submit those.

"We would love to recognize a family in each county," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler.

Online Century Farm records indicate the oldest farm in the program is the farm owned by Carl V. Brake in Edgecombe County, which dates to 1704.

As a farmer himself, Troxler knows how hard it is to keep family land in the family, especially as people move away from the farm to pursue other careers. Development also has presented challenges to continued family ownership.

"We see examples of land transitioning from agriculture to development in lots of areas of the state, especially around urban areas, the mountains and the coast," Troxler said. "When you consider that much of the state's open land and timberland is privately owned and that the average age of farmers is 58, you realize we could see a significant generational shift in land ownership in the next 25 years that could reshape the look of our state."

"It is no small task to maintain ownership of farmland, and the Century Farm Families who do, take a great deal of pride in their farming heritage and in the lineage of the farm," Troxler said. "It's great to be able to recognize their commitment to the land."
