November/December 2011

Raleigh, N.C.

On the Horizon

In 2012, the State Fair will host the Century Farm Family Reunion for families that have applied and whose farm has been approved as a Century Farm. The celebration is held during the N.C. State Fair and is a way to honor families who have maintained ownership of their farm for 100 years or more.

Currently, there are around 1,600 Century Farms in the state.

We will be sending out invitations to the October reunion at a later date.

If your farm qualifies as a Century Farm, but has never been registered, you can go online at www.ncagr.gov/paffairs/century/index.htm and print an application form to fill out. If your farm is registered but ownership has been transferred in the past three years to another family member, please contact the Public Affairs Office at 919-707-3002 to ensure we have the current contact information for your farm.

N.C. State Fair tops one million for second year

Thanks to great weather and a strong closing weekend, the N.C. State Fair reached 1 million in attendance for the second straight year.

"It was another wonderful fair," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. "Attendance was 1,009,173, our second-highest total ever. For the most part we had fantastic weather, and the final weekend was absolutely beautiful. Having good weather led to above-average attendance on all but one day of the fair."

Food Lion Hunger Relief Day on Thursday, Oct. 20, was successful, as fair patrons brought in more than 237,000 pounds of canned food to benefit the Food Bank of Central and Eastern North Carolina.

A tobacco tying contest has become an annual part of the opening day activities at the State Fair. This year, 19 teams competed for a total of $500 in prize money and bragging rights. The contest was sponsored by the John Deere Ice Cream Boys, the Tobacco Growers Association of N.C., the Duke Homestead Historic Site and the Oxford Tobacco Research Station.

The competitive entries remained a strong component of the State Fair, with a large number of competitors in the livestock, flower and garden and horticulture categories.

The fair played host to a variety of musical acts, including country music legend George Jones, Christian rockers Skillet, R&B icon Dionne Warwick and North Carolina's own Kellie Pickler.

The Village of Yesteryear, which features crafters and artisans from across the state, marked its 60th anniversary at the State Fair. Many retired and former crafters returned to visit during the fair.

"I cannot thank fairgoers enough for their continued support," Troxler said. "I hope they're already marking their calendars for Oct. 11-21, 2012. I know we're eager to start planning for it."

NCDA&CS Seed Testing Lab reopens in permanent spot

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services' Seed Laboratory has moved back to its permanent location in the Old Health Building following the completion of renovations.

Effective immediately, laboratory users who have been shipping samples through FedEx or UPS to the lab's temporary location in Cary should send samples to NCDA&CS Plant Industry Division Complex, 216 W. Jones St., Raleigh, NC, 27603.

Users who have been sending samples through the U.S. Postal Service should continue to address them to NCDA&CS-N.C. Seed Laboratory, 1060 Mail Service Center, Raleigh, NC 27699-1060.

The phone number for the lab is 919-733-3930, and the fax number is 919-733-1041.

"Full testing services have resumed, and our goal is to minimize the interruption of service to our customers," said Gene Cross, director of the Plant Industry Division.

The lab had moved to Cary last year to accommodate the needed replacement of the heating and air-conditioning system and renovation of the lab space in the Old Health Building, which is in downtown Raleigh.

The N.C. Seed Laboratory provides support for both the regulatory and service work of the department's seed and fertilizer field specialists, seed dealers, producers, consumers and university researchers. Testing focuses on purity and germination rates for seeds, accelerated aging, Round-Up Ready tolerance, and sand and moisture content.

It is hard to believe another year is drawing to a close. It seems like just yesterday we were planning for the Got to Be NC Festival in May, now we have also closed the gates on the annual Mountain State Fair and the N.C. State Fair.

I want to thank everyone who came out and supported these celebrations of agriculture. I am so proud that people continue to look forward to these events each year, and I am especially proud that so many people choose to participate in them.

Our fairs are designed to showcase the very best North Carolina has to offer, and we certainly saw that in the competitions. Entries were up in a number of categories and remained strong in some of our most popular classes.

Junior livestock competitions were one of the strongest categories, which I consider to be a positive sign for the future of agriculture. On our Deep Fried at the N.C. State Fair blog, we highlighted a 4-H group from Franklin County that had members showing for the very first time at the State Fair.

That will be an experience those young people will remember for the rest of their lives. It is hard to say whether any of them will pursue an agricultural profession, but they now have a greater appreciation of where their food comes from and the responsibility involved in raising livestock. We need more young people like the Franklin County kids to take an interest in agriculture.

I think the most important message I took away from following these articles is how the agricultural knowledge and experience is being passed down from one generation to another, and even at times being shared from peer to peer. I was impressed how more experienced teens such as Joey Moore, Ted Noe and Jacob Noe were able to help first-time 4-Hers learn to care for an animal and learn how to show those animals in competition.

And it was great to see Bunn sheep farmer Carvel Cheves, a 2010 State Fair Livestock Hall of Fame Inductee, and 4-H leader Alesia Moore offering these young people guidance and advice to help them learn more about animal agriculture.

I applaud the commitment of everyone involved -- from parents who saw that their children were at weekly meetings and the kids

Junior livestock winners take home $67,100 in auction

Junior livestock exhibitors from across the state collectively walked away with $67,100 in the annual Junior Livestock Sale of Champions. The auction featured junior livestock grand and reserve champions from the steer, barrow, lamb, goat and turkey contests.

“The Sale of Champions is a great way to encourage the next generation to work in agriculture,” said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler.

Harris Teeter purchased the junior market steer and N.C. Born And Bred grand champion for $25,000. It was shown by William Jones of Barnardsville (Buncombe County). Martin Meats purchased the reserve champion, also shown by Jones, for $10,000.

“This is the first year that the same animal took the top prize in both the junior market steer and N.C. Born and Bred competitions,” said State Fair livestock director Bruce Shankle.

Pictured above left, William Jones of Barnardsville with the grand champion junior market steer, Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler and representatives from Harris Teeter. which also won the N.C. Born and Bred category. Harris Teeter purchased both animals for $9,000 and $4,100, respectively.

Kayla Hampton of Mount Ulla (Rowan) sold her junior market lamb and N.C. Born and Bred grand champion to Harris Teeter for $4,500, and Ridge Roberts of Shawboro (Currituck) took home $3,300 for his reserve champion junior market lamb.

Kaelyn Mohrfeld of Pink Hill (Lenoir) had the junior market grand champion meat goat and N.C. Born and Bred grand champion, which Harris Teeter bought for $3,000. Iron Horse Auction and EBS Farms bought the reserve champion market meat goat, shown by Abigail Wilson of China Grove (Rowan), for $2,600.

N.C. Farm Bureau paid $3,000 for the grand champion market turkey shown by Emily Aycock of Elm City (Wilson), and Talley Farms purchased the reserve champion market turkey shown by Chris Loehr of Garner (Wake) for $2,600.

For the second year, a truckload auction was held after the Sale of Champions to sell the remaining junior livestock animals. Proceeds were divided equally among entrants.

Stanly County Livestock, Harward Brothers Livestock Market, Martin Meats, Max Cattle Sales, Chesnee Livestock Market and EBS Farms partnered to purchase the remaining 36 junior market steers for $10,000

The remaining 135 junior market barrows were sold for $6,000. In the junior market lamb category, 151 lambs were purchased for $10,000 by N.C. Farm Bureau. Farm Bureau also purchased the remaining 130 junior market meat goats for $5,000. Talley Farms and the N.C. Farm Bureau purchased a truckload of 232 turkeys for $5,000.

eager to learn, to the mentors and 4-H leaders who kept everyone on track.

Our blog highlighted just one group in its efforts leading up to the State Fair, but there are many, many more 4-H kids and leaders and livestock leaders who have similar stories to tell.

In fact, this year a total of seven people were inducted into the Livestock Hall of Fame at either the Mountain State Fair or State Fair. This has been a way to recognize and honor the contributions of the many livestock contributors who have helped make the fair shows successful.

Inducted this year into the Mountain State Fair Livestock Hall of Fame were Glen “Corky” Boyd of Haywood County, Dr. David Waldrep of Asheville, and Neal and Shirley Stamey of Haywood County.

Boyd, who was honored posthumously, raised prize-winning Limousin cattle and provided cattle for youth participants for many years.

Waldrep, who is a regional field veterinarian with 28 years of service with the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, has checked in thousands of cattle, goats, llamas, sheep, swine and poultry during his tenure. His efforts have helped ensure healthy animals in competition.

The Stameys have been an integral part of the Mountain State Fair Beef Cattle shows, where Neal has served as superintendent of the show for 18 years with his wife’s assistance. In the past, the couple also opened their farm for showmanship clinics for youth.

Inducted into the State Fair Livestock Hall of Fame in October were Kenneth Vaughan of Statesville, Dr.

John C. Wilk of Raleigh and Joyce Wilson of Zebulon.

Vaughan, who was also inducted posthumously, had been involved with the dairy shows for more than 30 years, serving as superintendent for the past 14 years. Wilk is a professor emeritus in the N.C. State University Animal Science Department, where he has served as an adviser to the Animal Science Club, coached the college team and provided Jersey cows for competition.

Wilson was recognized for her involvement with horse shows. She started working with them in 1982, serving as both assistant horse show secretary and head horse show secretary. This year, she was the manager for the all-breed horse shows.

We should all be proud that so many people are willing to share their expertise and time to help make livestock shows at the fairs so successful.

Congratulations to all who competed and to those who were inducted into a hall of fame, and thank you for all who helped with these shows.

Happy holidays to you and your family!
