African Swine Fever

Report Feral Swine

Feral swine can carry foreign animal diseases like African swine fever. While this disease has never been found in domestic or feral swine in the United States, there is no treatment or vaccine for it. That’s why surveillance is very important. Help protect U.S. pigs by immediately reporting sick or dead feral swine.

What To Do

• If you find a sick or dead feral swine with no obvious injury or cause of death, report it right away.

• Be sure to note the location of the sighting.

• Don’t disturb the carcass or approach a sick animal.

• If safe to do so, check the area for any other sick or dead feral swine.

How To Report

Call the USDA Wildlife Services program in your State at 866-4-USDA-WS. Don’t wait! Quick detection is essential to prevent the spread of African swine fever.
