

Agricultural Review subscribers are asked to renew their subscription annually to keep the newspaper coming to their mailbox. The renewal card is a part of the front page of the newspaper. Clip out the card along the dotted lines, add a stamp and drop it in the mail.

You can also renew you subscription online and save the stamp. You will need your subscription number, which appears above your name and address on the card, and your zip code. Log onto www.AgReview.org and enter your subscription number and zip code and you are renewed.

We asked that you please do not call to renew or email your information asking us to renew it. We are a very small staff and do not have the resources to handle all the calls and emails from our loyal subscribers.

If you are signed up to receive email notifications when the newspaper is posted online, you do not need to do anything. That list remains active year-round.
