Aquaculture Conference runs Feb. 11-13

The N.C. Aquaculture Development Conference will be held Feb. 11-13 at the New Bern DoubleTree Hotel. Introductory aquaculture presentations and self-drive farm tours are highlights Feb. 11 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Registration and the trade show area open at 7:30 a.m. Feb. 12, with speakers covering aquatic animal health, research updates, and marketing aquaculture domestically and internationally. The Aquafoods Fest wraps up the day.

The conference concludes with joint aquaculture information sessions from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Feb. 13. An optional aquaponics pre-conference short course hosted by Pentair AES will be held Feb. 10 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Cost for the full conference is $110 by Feb. 4 or $150 after that. A la carte prices for the courses only or Aquafoods Fest are available. Cost for the optional short course is $150 by itself or $125 with conference registration. For more information, go to www.ncaquaculture.org. To register, contact Julia Fiore at 919-515-6780 or jfiore@ncsu.edu.

Poultry owners urged to maintain biosecurity efforts as USDA announces HPAI in Indiana

State Veterinarian Doug Meckes is encouraging poultry farmers and flock owners in North Carolina to maintain strict biosecurity measures after the U.S. Department of Agriculture confirmed the presence of highly pathogenic H7N8 avian influenza in a commercial turkey flock in Dubois County, Ind., on Jan. 15. It was the first detection of HPAI in the United States since last June.

This is a different strain of HPAI than the strains that caused the 2015 outbreak, but it is still concerning. Poultry owners and growers should be aware of and comply with all import requirements for movement of poultry into the state. For more information, go to www.ncagr.gov/avianflu.

There are no known cases of H7N8 infections in humans. As a reminder, the proper handling and cooking of poultry and eggs to an internal temperature of 165 degrees Fahrenheit kills bacteria and viruses, including HPAI.

Samples from the turkey flock, which experienced increased mortality, were tested at the Indiana Animal Disease Diagnostic Laboratory at Purdue University, which is a part of USDA's National Animal Health Laboratory Network, and confirmed by USDA. USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service is working closely with the Indiana State Board of Animal Health on a joint incident response. Indiana officials quarantined the affected premises and depopulated the flock. Depopulation prevents the spread of the disease. Birds from the flock will not enter the food system.

As part of existing avian influenza response plans, Indiana and federal authorities are working jointly on additional surveillance and testing in the nearby area. At press time, there were no indications of additional cases.

The rapid testing and response in this incident is the result of months of planning with local, state, federal and industry partners to ensure the most

Agricultural Development Forum is Feb. 4

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services is hosting two events aimed at farmers and agribusinesses on Feb. 4 in the Holshouser Building at the State Fairgrounds.

The 11th annual Agricultural Development Forum will focus on N.C. farm families' preparation for the future and innovative solutions to hunger and food insecurity. It will run from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

At 1:30 p.m., the department will host an information session about new federal food safety rules.

Admission to both events is free and lunch will be provided. For information, visit www.ncagr.gov/agforum. Individuals with questions may contact Christina Waggett at 919-707-3008. The forum is sponsored by Publix. Both events are being held in conjunction with the Southern Farm Show.

"This year's forum will include a panel of farmers discussing how farm families prepare for and deal with opportunities and challenges," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. "A second panel – featuring representatives of food banks, supermarkets and hunger-relief groups – will focus on ways that North Carolina is addressing hunger and food insecurity in the state."

The program also will include an update on the state's Food Manufacturing Task Force, and Troxler will wrap up the forum with his annual State of Agriculture address.

At 1:30 p.m., officials with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration will hold an information session about new federal rules developed under the Food Safety Modernization Act.

"The session will cover compliance dates and other as-

Commissioner Troxler

In my experience as a farmer, I know where you start is often not where you end.

The very nature of agriculture dictates that farmers start the year with a degree of optimism, hopeful that the weather will cooperate, that yields will be strong and that prices will be up.

Then there is the long growing season in between, that time when things take unexpected turns, when appropriate amounts of rain give way to weeks of wet weather and when the season goes from promising to problematic, or maybe downright horrid.

For a number of North Carolina farmers, I probably just described 2015.

In October, some were likely looking for the spigot to turn off as rain poured onto fields, forcing equipment to stay out of them while crops sat drenched, waiting to be harvested.

I have heard similar stories from a number of farmers across the state, and the recent release of the 2015 crop summary by the U.S. Department of Agriculture supports everything I have heard.

Most crops saw decreased yields and drops in production, certainly not good news. Sweet potatoes proved to be the exception with increased acreage and increased production overall, despite lower yields per acre.

Sweet potato farmers harvested 86,000 acres, up 14,000 from 2014, with production up 3 percent at 16.3 million hundredweight. The crop saw record yields of 220 hundredweight per acre in 2014, which dropped to 190 hundredweight in 2015.

Corn, cotton, peanuts, soybeans and tobacco all saw production numbers drop in 2015, running 17 to 48 percent lower than 2014 numbers, although most were still close or just below the 10-year averages.

Harvested corn acreage was down 50,000 acres to 730,000, with production at 82.5 million bushels. That was 20 percent lower than in 2014.

Harvested cotton acreage was 385,000, down 75,000 from 2014, with production at 522,000 bales or 48 percent below production in 2015.

Farmers harvested 88,000 acres of peanuts in 2015, down 5,000 acres from the previous year. Production dropped 26 percent from 2014 to 299.2

pects of the rules, which govern produce safety and preventive controls for human food and animal food," Troxler said.

Speakers will include Michael Taylor, FDA deputy commissioner for foods and veterinary medicine, and representatives from the agency's Center for Food Safety and Applied Nutrition and Center for Veterinary Medicine.

Attendees will have the opportunity to ask questions about the rules, which FDA finalized last year.

Workshops to focus on voluntary ag districts

The N.C. Agricultural Development and Farmland Preservation Trust Fund will hold four workshops across the state for those interested in protecting their communities' agricultural lands and learning more about the Voluntary Agricultural Districts program.

The Voluntary Agricultural Districts and Farmland Preservation Workshops are for agricultural advisory board members, county representatives, program staff, farmers, landowners, elected officials and anyone responsible for, or interested in, farmland preservation and the administration of the Voluntary Agricultural Districts program. The workshops are free and open to the public, but registration is required.

Workshops will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the following dates:

- Thursday, Feb. 25, University of Mount Olive Communications Building, 646 James B. Hunt Drive, Mount Olive;
- Tuesday, March 1, Sen. Bob Martin Eastern Agricultural Center, 2900 NC Highway 125 South, Williamston;
- Thursday, March 17, Forsyth Agriculture Building, 1450 Fairchild Road, Winston-Salem;
- Thursday, March 24, WNC Regional Livestock Center, 592 Beaverdam Road, Canton.

The workshops are hosted by the ADFP Trust Fund, with help from the N.C. Forest Service, Division of Soil and Water Conservation, N.C. State University, N.C. Department of Transportation, N.C. Department of Environmental Quality, N.C. State Grange and the N.C. Farm Bureau.

N.C. Bioenergy Research Initiative awards $1 million in grants

The N.C. Bioenergy Research Initiative recently awarded $1 million in grants for 12 research projects to boost bioenergy opportunities and production in the state.

"Exciting and promising work is happening in North Carolina in terms of bioenergy research, study and development, and I am pleased this grant funding is helping advance bioenergy opportunities and potential for farmers, agribusinesses, forestry industries and entrepreneurs," said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler.

Below is a list of grant recipients and projects:

- $61,123 to N.C. State University's Department of Biological and Agricultural Engineering for the second year of its study of fertilization rates and yield response of the giant reed Arundo donax. The project will focus on collecting field data needed to establish realistic yield expectations and nitrogen fertilization rates under various North Carolina growing conditions.
- $40,652 to the NCSU Department of Forestry for a "Loblolly Pine Biomass Genetics/Cropping Study, Years Three through Five." The project will continue genetic evaluation of loblolly pine varieties with high potential as an energy source.
- $34,111 to the NCSU Clean Energy Technology Center for "The North Carolina Bioenergy Council and Bioenergy Roadmap." Funding will provide the opportunity for further discussion of bioenergy related topics including research, policies, and other issues related to the bioenergy industry in North Carolina.
- $100,000 to the NCSU Department of Soil Science for a project titled, "Nutrient Dynamics and Production of Bioenergy Crops in Swine Effluent Sprayfields, 2015-2016." Funding will continue research on the nutrient requirements and uptake of proposed biomass crops grown in a sprayfield environment.
- $95,681 to the NCSU Department of Crop Science for the project "Optimizing Bioenergy Yield and Supply." The purpose of the project is to determine the agronomic effects of harvest frequency and timing on dedicated bioenergy grasses.
- $98,640 to Carolina Land & Lakes RC&D for the development of "Pellets for Pulletts." This expands a previously funded project into areas of the state with a higher concentration of broiler production. Wood-pellet heating systems have been shown to offer cost savings, reduction in moisture and fossil fuel by-products and delivery of a better product to market, while utilizing a renewable domestic fuel.

- $69,793 to the NCSU Department of Soil Science to study the "Suitability of N.C. Piedmont Soils for Bioenergy Crop Production, 2015-2017." This project will investigate the potential conversion of land to bioenergy crops with an emphasis on how soil biochemical and physical properties will be impacted. Five additional projects are being funded through Tennessee Valley Authority Settlement Funds designated for research projects.

- $99,753 to the NCSU Department of Horticultural Science to expand "Cold-hardy Sugarcanes for Western NC (phase II, 2015-2016)." This project will develop and evaluate improved, high-yielding, cold hardy, non-invasive sugarcanes propagated vegetatively as advanced bioenergy crops for North Carolina.
- $96,111 to Carolina Land & Lakes RC&D for the development of "Pellets for Plants." This project will explore opportunities related to wood-pellet heating systems for greenhouses.
- $85,343 to Appalachian State University's Department of Technology and Environmental Design to expand the project, "Biomass Greenhouse-heating Systems for Resource-limited Farmers." Funding will be used to conduct pilot tests on two local farms to transfer the biomass heat delivery system technology.
- $99,753 to the NCSU Department of Horticultural Science to expand the project, "Reinventing Giant Miscanthus (phase II, 2015-2016)." Funding will be used to develop and evaluate improved giant miscanthus varieties with enhanced yields and genetic diversity that have the capacity for vegetative propagation.
- $119,040 to the NCSU Department of Forestry for the "Western NC Bioenergy Forest Demonstration" project. Funding will provide a visible demonstration site for landowners and a research-based platform to evaluate weed control methods in combination with best practices of spacing and fertilization.

The N.C. Bioenergy Research Initiative is a program of the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services. Its goal is to support the research and development of agricultural and forestry-based feedstocks for bioenergy production and agribusiness development. The N.C. General Assembly approved funding for grants to stimulate energy production from N.C. agricultural and forest products.

NCD&CS offers classes on tools to manage commodity price volatility

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services will offer a series of risk-management workshops across the state through March.

The workshops will focus on managing price volatility and identifying macro indicators in marketing agricultural commodities.

The following topics will be covered: Introduction to grain hedging, basis trading, cost of carry, cotton futures, option trading on futures and equities, and macro forces. The principles of options, spreading strategies, using options to manage financial risk, and energy derivatives and how to manage exposure to energy costs will be discussed. All workshops will be held from 10 a.m. to noon, and are free.

Following is the schedule of classes:

- Feb. 16 at the Pasquotank County Extension Center, 1209 McPherson St., Elizabeth City, 252-338-3954;
- Feb. 22 at the Lee County Extension Center, 2420 Tramway Road, Sanford, 919-775-5624;
- Feb. 23 at the Northampton Cooperative Extension Center, 9495 N.C. 305 N., Jackson, 252-534-2831;
- March 8 at the Union County Extension Center, 3230 Presson Road, Monroe, 704-283-3801.
- March 10 at the Iredell County Extension, 444 Bristol Drive, Statesville, 704-873-0507.

For more information or to register for the workshops, contact Nick Lassiter, NCD&CS marketing specialist, at 919-707-3129.

efficient and effective coordination. Since the previous HPAI detections in 2015, APHIS and its state and industry partners have learned valuable lessons to help implement stronger preparedness and response capabilities. In September, APHIS published an HPAI Fall Preparedness and Response Plan that captures the results of this planning effort, organizing information on preparatory activities, policy decisions and updated strategy documents.

Anyone involved with poultry production, from the small backyard to the large commercial producer, should review their biosecurity activities to assure the health of their birds. To facilitate such a review, a biosecurity self-assessment and educational materials can be found at http://www.uspoultry.org/animal_husbandry/intro.cfm. Additional information is available at www.ncagr.gov/avianflu.

Soybean production was down 17 percent from 2014 to 57.3 million bushels, harvested from 1.79 million acres. Harvested acreage was actually up by 60,000 in 2015, making the drop in production even more significant.

Production of flue-cured tobacco dropped 17 percent to 374 million pounds, and burley production decreased 30 percent to 1.9 million pounds. Total harvested tobacco acreage was 171,000 acres in 2015, down 22,400 acres from 2014.

I saw a recent report on the Southern Farm Network talking about soybeans still in the field as of mid-January. N.C. State University Extension Soybean Specialist Dr. Jim Dunphy noted at press time that there is still a market for damaged beans, albeit a discounted one.

Dunphy added that another issue that we could possibly see in 2016 as a result of the poor 2015 season is the lack of soybean seed, perhaps for select varieties.

We will likely have a better understanding of the situation later this month.

As farmers are considering their options for 2016, I am hopeful we have a better growing and harvesting season than we did in 2015.

I hope to see you at an upcoming commodity meeting or at the Ag Development Conference Feb. 4 at the State Fairgrounds, where I will deliver my annual State of Agriculture address.

Poultry & Supplies For Sale

Highly pathogenic avian influenza alert

In 2015, HPAI was found in the wildfowl population in the United States, representing a risk for poultry owners. At this time no cases have been found in North Carolina.

Poultry owners are encouraged, however, to watch their birds for any signs of illness and to contact a veterinarian if they find sick birds.

Growers can also contact one of four NCDA&CS regional veterinary diagnostic labs for more information. Go to www.ncagr.gov/vet/ncvdl/VetLabFacilitiesDirectory.html for contact information.

As this disease can spread by infected wildfowl, it is important to eliminate opportunities for your birds to come in contact with wild birds.

Owners are also urged to be extra mindful of biosecurity measures to prevent the spread of this disease.

Some practices include quarantining any new poultry additions from your existing flock for two to three weeks to observe for signs of sickness, have a dedicated pair of shoes and clothing for working with birds that stay on your property, be mindful if driving onto property with poultry as the disease can spread by vehicles. More information about HPAI can be found at www.ncagr.gov/avianflu.

NCD&CS hosting farmer meeting Feb. 26 with Harris Teeter

N.C. farmers interested in learning about the requirements for selling their products to Harris Teeter stores can take part in a free information session Feb. 26 in Brunswick County.

The meeting will be hosted by the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at N.C. Cooperative Extension's Brun-

able to experience.”

The schedule includes a morning group session, one-on-one sessions with category specialists and lunch. Mark Hilton, Harris Teeter's vice president of produce and floral, will provide an overview of the Matthews-based retailer's guidelines for selling to its stores. Category specialists also will be on hand to answer questions from growers.

The event is free, but registration is required by Monday, Feb. 15. For more information or to register, contact Tony Haywood, NCD&CS retail marketing specialist, at tony.haywood@ncagr.gov or 919-707-3140.

Four stores pay fines for price-scanning errors

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services' Standards Division has collected fines from stores in Cabarrus, Davidson, Durham and Pitt counties for excessive price-scanning errors.

The Standards Division conducts periodic, unannounced inspections of a business' price-scanner system to check for accuracy between the prices advertised and the prices that ring up at the register. If a store has more than a 2 percent error rate on overcharges, inspectors discuss the findings with the store manager and conduct a more intensive follow-up inspection at a later date. Undercharges are also reported, but do not count against a store.

Penalties are assessed if a store fails the follow-up inspection. In addition to the penalties paid, the store will be subject to re-inspection every 60 days from the last inspection until it meets the 2-percent-or-less rate. Additional penalties may be assessed if the store fails a re-inspection.

“Stores have a responsibility to make sure that the price listed on the shelf matches the price charged at the register,” said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. “We want shoppers to be confident that at grocery stores and retail outlets they are paying the shelf price they expect and not more. Consumers can contact our Standards Division at 919-707-3225 to register a complaint.”

Following are stores that paid civil penalties in the last quarter of 2015:

CVS #5463 at 9805 Rocky River Road, Harrisburg, paid $1,395 in civil penalties. An initial inspection in September found an error rate of 6 percent, based on three overcharges in a 50-item lot. A second inspection in October found an error rate of 7 percent, based on 21 overcharges on a 300-item lot. The store will be re-inspected.

Save-A-Lot Food Store #575 at 292 Talbert Blvd., Lexington, paid $2,295 in civil penalties. An initial inspection in August found an error rate of 6 percent, based on three overcharges in a 50-item lot. A second inspection in September found an error rate of 2.33 percent, based on seven overcharges in a 300-item lot. The store passed a re-inspection in November with a .67 percent error rate.

Walmart #4369 at 1010 Martin Luther King Parkway, Durham, paid $1,125 in civil penalties. An initial inspection in September found an error rate of 6 percent, based on six overcharges in a 100-item lot. A second inspection in October found an error rate of 3 percent, based on nine overcharges in a 300-item lot. The store passed a re-inspection in December with a 2 percent error rate.

Dollar General #13431 at 4085 Dickinson Ave., Greenville, paid a total of $2,427.50 in civil penalties. An initial inspection in June found an error rate of 8 percent, based on four overcharges in a 50-item lot. A second inspection in August found an error rate of 3.33 percent, based on 10 overcharges in a 300-item lot. The store paid $787.50 in civil penalties at that time. A third inspection in October found an error rate of 2.67 percent, based on eight overcharges in a 300-item lot. The store paid $1,640 in civil penalties. The store passed re-inspection in December with a .67 percent error rate.

Fifth annual Food Business Conference set for April 5 in GSO

■ Early-bird registration rate available through Feb. 15

Registration is open for the fifth annual Food Business Conference, which will be held April 5 in Greensboro.

The N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services will host the conference from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Greensboro-High Point Airport Marriott. It is geared for people interested in expanding their food business in North Carolina.

“Value-added products, high-quality processed foods and other food-related businesses are vital to the success and growth of North Carolina's $76-billion agriculture industry,” said Agriculture Commissioner Steve Troxler. “This conference offers a great opportunity for new and established North Carolina food businesses to learn how to take their companies to the next level.”

The conference will feature presentations from industry leaders and local food entrepreneurs. Kelley O'Brien, director of interactive, digital and social media for Krispy Kreme, will be the keynote speaker. Additional presentations include “Marketing with a Non-Traditional Mindset,” “Creating a Professional Image for Your Food Product” and “Selling Through Amazon and Other Online Portals.”

Deadline for registration is March 30. The cost is $100, and breakfast and lunch are included. Attendees can save $10 by registering before Feb. 15. A complete agenda and registration form are available online at www.ncagr.gov/markets/agribiz.

For more information on the conference, contact Annette Dunlap, NCD&CS food business specialist, at annette.dunlap@ncagr.gov or 919-707-3117

The Northern Piedmont Specialty Crops School will be held March 4 at the Person County Extension Center, 304 S. Morgan St., Roxboro. The program will focus on growing and marketing specialty crops and will include a farmer presentation on direct retail marketing on the farm, pesticide updates for asparagus, information on transitioning from community gardens to micro market gardens and research update on pawpaws. Cost is $25 for the first person of a family or business and $15 for each additional from the family or business. Pre-registration by Feb. 26 is needed to guarantee a seat and lunch. The preregistration form can be found at Granville.ces.ncsu.edu. For more information contact Carl Cantaluppi at 919-603-1350.

As a way to help farmers and agricultural workers stay safe at work, the N.C. Department of Labor offers safety videos on a variety of topics through its YouTube channel. Video topics include: preventing green tobacco sickness, hazard communication, tobacco harvester safety, heat stress, migrant housing requirements, forklift safety, and information about the NCDOL's Gold Star Growers program. The videos are in English and Spanish to increase understanding of safety hazards and preventing accidents. To learn more about the NCDOL and the Agricultural Safety and Health Bureau, go to www.nclabor.com or call 1-800-NC-LABOR (800-625-2267). NCDOL is also on Facebook and Twitter (@NCDOL).

Beekeepers with bees for rent and growers interested in bee pollination services can post their information on the BeeLinked website at www.ncagr.com/beelinked. The site is hosted by the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services and the N.C. State University Apiculture Program. Anyone interested in listing their information can do so by filling out an online Submit Your Ad form on the BeeLinked page or by contacting NCD&CS at 919-233-8214 or by email at NCHoneybee@ncagr.gov or call NCSU at 919-515-1660. The NCD&CS Plant Industry Division regulates the movement of agricultural or related items capable of spreading harmful insects, diseases, and other pests. Beekeepers participating in this program will be required to comply with all honey and bee industry regulations.

The N.C. Ag Finance Authority provides credit to agriculture in areas where financing is not available at reasonable rates and terms. The agency originates, services and finances farm loans, rural business loans, disaster loans and cotton gin loans. It also offers tax-exempt ag development bonds for agribusiness processing, ag-related manufacturing or ag waste disposal. For more about Ag Finance Authority programs or to request a loan application, call 919-790-3949 or email at RequestLoanInfo@ncagr.gov.
